

Project Restore

Restore is a social enterprise with a mission to upcycle used shipping containers into eco-friendly homes for those in need. Through utilizing shipping containers, Restore is able to construct affordable homes for as low as $60,000. The process is environmentally sustainable, as we are able to repurpose 7,000 kg of steel while also reducing the need for materials used in traditional housing construction, such as bricks and cement.

Needs

50% of Indigenous Canadians across the country are living in homes that do more damage than good. Homes that are structurally unsound, mold infested and barely big enough to fit their families. Due to insufficient income, the ability to replace or improve their homes is close to impossible. Despite government funding, housing conditions for Indigenous families are not improving and the problem continues to worsen. These issues all have led to thousands of people without a place to feel safe or place to call home.

HOUSING COSTS

Restore aim to provide homes at the most affordable price possible. To achieve this, we will be providing unfinished shipping container homes—they will be completed with all the crucial necessities that must be done by our specialized professionals, Giant Containers. The materials needed to finish the home will be included in the shipping container and assembly will occur after it is transported to its final location. Think about Ikea furniture, a do-it-yourself kit, but for homes. These homes can be customized and built in a specialized facility all year and can take 3-5 months to complete. This is a significantly short period of time when compared to the 10-16 month completion time for the average home.

How to Get Involved

Restore is an all encompassing eco-friendly sustainable solution to address the housing needs of individuals across the country. Restore is not just a project, it is a social enterprise started by dedicated students who are committed to empowering Canadians through affordable housing, education, and economic opportunity.

In supporting Restore you will better the lives of communities facing housing insecurity. Your tax-deductible donation will:

- Support our team in designing and constructing shipping container homes for disadvantaged communities
- Empower community members through hands-on education, training and job opportunities
- Expand our initiative to other communities throughout Canada with little access to affordable housing
